LinCAT LinCAT (Linear Control Automation Toolkit) is a free, cross-platform, open source toolkit for control systems engineering, see Control Systems Engineering. LinCAT is a project initiated by the University of Stuttgart, supported by the German Aerospace Center (DLR), the Spanish National Space Program (CNES), the French space agency CNES, ESA and the German Federal Ministry of Economics and Technology (BMWi). LinCAT is available under GNU General Public License version 3 and for commercial use. It supports 2D and 3D geometry in a top-down hierarchical manner and integrates CAD (computer-aided design) and NC (numerical control) functionality. LinCAT also offers on-line 3D printing capability. Applications There are several applications of LinCAT: Simulation tool for control systems design/simulation Image-based mechanical design Navigation and navigation assistance Virtual prototyping 3D printing System identification for closed loop control References Category:Computational science Category:Free computer-aided design software Category:Free computer-aided design tools Category:Software that uses ScilabTNF and IL-1, two proinflammatory cytokines, play important roles in the development of glomerular disease. In type II diabetes mellitus, elevated circulating levels of these cytokines are seen. Furthermore, TNF levels are elevated in the plasma of patients with diabetic nephropathy. The mechanisms leading to this proinflammatory state are poorly understood. We hypothesize that altered glycosaminoglycans (GAGs) released by the glomerulus following ba244e880a
