KeyMacro is a very simple piece of software, yet it can be very useful. All that you need to do is to start it up and then press one of the 36 or more keyboard shortcuts on the keyboard. You can set up as many shortcuts as you like. The downside is that you can only change your keyboard's shortcuts by using the KeyMacro software. Once you have done that, the hotkeys can be used to perform an action on your entire computer by using only one keystroke. To use the hotkey, just press the key and a dialog box will appear to tell you what you can do with it. KeyMacro is a great timesaver when you want to use one keystroke to perform multiple things. For example, if you want to change your desktop background, you can use a single keystroke to do that. You can even run Windows Explorer and download files with a single keystroke. KeyMacro is an easy way to map any key combination you want to any command that you want. KeyMacro is easy to use and configure. KeyMacro is not perfect. KeyMacro has more features than the one I currently use, but only some of those are worth using. KeyMacro has a limited number of options. KeyMacro has a limited number of keyboard shortcuts. KeyMacro requires you to use other software to configure the keyboard shortcuts. KeyMacro is hard to understand. KeyMacro is not free. KeyMacro is slow. KeyMacro does not save any changes you make. KeyMacro does not make a log of the changes you make. KeyMacro is designed for Windows. KeyMacro is for Windows Vista, Windows 7, Windows 8, and Windows 10. KeyMacro does not work with Macs. KeyMacro has a limited number of tools to do many things. KeyMacro is not perfect. KeyMacro does not have a section to add new commands. KeyMacro does not provide a way to add commands. KeyMacro is not for Windows 8, Windows 8.1, Windows 10. KeyMacro is too slow. KeyMacro does not provide a way to download files. KeyMacro does not provide a way to upload files.
